Such networks are intrinsically disordered, which are known for their elasticity. In order to form gels, collagen II associates with a variety of macromolecules, notably proteoglycans and integrins, and hydrophobic interactions play a predominant role in the mechanistic process. I had this problem in my mind for quite some time now... I tried to solve it algebraically, but I ended up with a lot of polynomials and complex numbers. Is there a simpler solution that I am missing? A: I think the quickest way to see this is to use recursion. Let  $f(n)$  be the minimum amount of time to compute  $2^n$ ... First suppose we are given a computer that can only calculate  $2, 4, 8, 16, \dots$ ; then it takes about  $f(1)$  steps to compute  $2^1$  and it takes about  $f(1) + f(1)$  steps to compute  $2^2$ . It takes about  $f(1) + f(1) + f(1)$  steps to compute  $2^3$ ... If we are given a computer that can calculate  $2, 4, 8, 16, \dots$ , we can compute  $2^{i+1}$  by doing the following steps: If  $i=0$  or  $1$  then compute  $2^i$  with our basic  $2, 4, 8, 16, \dots$  computer. For  $i \geq 2$ , let  $p$  be the least prime greater than or equal to  $i$ , and compute  $2^i$  using the regular  $2, 4, 8, 16, \dots$  computer. The time to calculate  $2^i$  is at most the
